

Publishing in Sensors and Actuators

Paddy French
Editor-in-chief

Publishing in reputable international journals is an important part of academic life. The process requires time to ensure the suitability of the submission and also, the quality. Finding the right journal is an essential first step. Being out of scope will lead to rejection, regardless of the quality of the work. Furthermore, an inappropriate paper will not reach the intended readership, and may therefore be lost. This presentation will explain the procedure for review, considerations when preparing a paper and also issues such as authors rights and plagiarism.
